Dear Senator,

On behalf of all the 63 member organizations comprising the Nursing Community Coalition \(NCC\), we look forward to working and collaborating with you in the 118th Congress. The NCC represents the cross section of education, practice, research, and regulation within the nursing profession. We believe that the healthcare delivery system should be one that promotes wellness, advances research through scientific discovery, and provides timely access to care across the life continuum. With over four million licensed Registered Nurses (RNs), Advanced Practice Registered Nurses (APRNs),¹ nurse leaders, students, faculty, and researchers, the profession embodies the drive and passion to continually improve care for all patients, families, and communities.²

During COVID-19, as with every public health crisis this country has faced, nurses have been at the frontlines leading the healthcare response, driving innovation, and improving health care delivery. Continued investment in the current and future nursing workforce is imperative. For fifteen years, the Nursing Community Coalition has held strong to our Core Principles and has championed increased investments in:

Title VIII Nursing Workforce Development Programs: Supporting Our Current and Future Nurses

Reauthorized in the 116th Congress, the Nursing Workforce Development Programs (Title VIII of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 296 et seq.)) help meet the nation's demand for nursing services by addressing all aspects of nursing education, practice, recruitment, and retention. Their focus is to address the needs of rural and underserved communities, where nursing care is critical to improving health.

National Institute of Nursing Research: Nurse Researchers and Scientists Leading the Way

As one of the 27 Institutes and Centers at the National Institutes of Health (NIH), the National Institute of Nursing Research (NINR) funds research that establishes the scientific basis for quality patient care. With a renewed purpose of addressing social determinants of health, NINR is at the forefront of disease prevention, patient care, and recovery. Our nation's nurse researchers and scientists are essential to developing new evidence-based practices to care for all patients.

With an ever-changing health care landscape, the NCC has expanded its policy agenda to include some of the most pressing issues facing our country. From maternal health, public and population health, veteran's health, and mental health to supporting the safety and well-being of our nursing workforce and protecting them from physical violence, successfully connecting sound policy with impactful implementation is essential to ensuring an equitable and efficient health delivery system for all. It is imperative that legislation focuses on access to the entire continuum of services provided by RNs and APRNs and removes unnecessary barriers to receiving that care. As our nation evaluates lessons learned from COVID-19, and as we prepare for the next public health challenge, the contribution of nursing education, workforce, and research remains critical; especially as we work to increase access to high-quality health care and promote wellness of the patient and provider.

As the new Congress commences, we stand ready to support you and your staff to address these vital issues, while building long-term support for our current and future nursing workforce. Together we can ensure that our nation's nurses have the resources needed to build a more equitable health care system. If the Nursing Community can be of any assistance, please do not hesitate to contact the coalition's Executive Director, Rachel Stevenson, at rstevenson@thenursingcommunity.org.
